ABSOLUTION.

When all the steady stars are lit
And the light sleeps, for weariness,
Night stands with plying hands outspread
To give her pardon and to bless.
Earth creeps so near to heaven then

The benediction of the dark!

MY MICROBIAN DINNER

How a Man Thought He Could Do
Woman's Work and Was Disappointed.

BY CATHERINE LOUISE SMITH.

"I wonder, Thaddens," said my wife doubtfully, giving me a searchlight look, "if you could get your own dinner tonight. I want to go on a meeting of the Suffrage club, and the maid is going out."

Now! It has always seemed to me that the more a man asserts his independence the better. I felt pretty doubtful about that dinner, but I wasn't going to let Maria know I had any qualms. I remembered, too, I had managed well at bachelor housekeeping for a few weeks. I had everything convenient; never made the beds because it was so well to let them air thoroughly, and because I believed in consolidation and that in union there is strength I did not wash my dishes, but let them collect and the day before my mother returned put them in a tub and turned the hose on them.

The success of this venture emboldened me to try next but for reasons best known to my own soul I did not tell Maria. I simply said I could manage and would really enjoy the novel performance of getting my own dinner and that it would by no means prove fatal. I resolved two things firmly—that I should have a good dinner irrespective of the germ theory, microbes and bacilli and that the dinner should be at 6 o'clock promptly. This not having been done, I felt, was all nonsense, and while Maria was away was surely the time to indulge in microbes, for she feared them so she had given me a restricted diet. That day I left the office at 4 o'clock. I had been thinking at intervals during the day what I should have for that dinner. I even meditated corned beef, cabbage, mince pie and doughnuts. All of them I would make myself after I left the office.

I procured on the way home the necessary supplies. An alluring display met my eyes. I went into the market and purchased a nice plate piece of corned beef. I was about to tell the butcher I would carry it with me for my 6 o'clock dinner when the butcher, who knew me pretty well, assured me that the corned beef had to boil a number of hours to be done. In the reaction with this announcement I remembered "that he could send it for the next day; I had meant that all along," and I hastily purchased some oysters and lamb chops. "I will have oyster soup for the first course," said I to myself, "and chops and tomatoes for the second. If that won't be good, I don't know what will."

It was 5 o'clock when I got home. It was so lonely without her that I thought I had better start the dinner at once; besides, I wanted that meal at 6 o'clock sharp. Maria had about bothered the life out of me by not having meals on time. I lighted the burners on the gas stove, and I decided to make biscuit, mince pie and doughnuts, besides cooking the oysters and the meat. By 5:30 I was just enjoying the thing. I had the milk for the oysters, and the others had been blazing for some time, all ready for use when wanted. The first thing I did was to find a cookbook.

I ran down the index through pumpkin, lemon, carrot, custard, until I got to mince pie. This I read carefully. Then I sadly closed the book. Mince pie required cold meat, apples and a thousand other things and could not be made in an hour or two, and at 6 I must have that dinner, felt distressed, but there were still the doughnuts. I was just in the midst of discovering it would take at least a good two hours to make doughnuts when, by thunder, didn't that milk boil over! I felt like going through the whole litany. I rushed to the stove, seized my clean handkerchief and had just made up my mind to dip the milk must be done enough for the oysters when I discovered the handkerchief was done also.

The crisis being past, I decided to make my biscuit. I thought this time I would not consult the cookbook, for it was getting along toward 6, and it took too long to hunt up recipes. I put a great deal of flour in a small bowl, dumped in some water, and proceeded to mold it all into shape as I had seen Maria often do. In the interim I talked to myself.

"I know all about this," I said with pride, "you just stir until it gets the consistency of cream, put in a pinch of salt and flavor to taste. That's what they always say. I have read it hundreds of times. I can't fail. I shall just slap them into a tin pan and put them in the oven." I felt I was succeeding so well that I actually began to hum, when suddenly it occurred to me to wonder if one greased the tins. "When in doubt, don't grease," I said to myself, and I quickly decorated the pans with dabs of dough.

Five minutes later I had a sickening feeling, for Maria had never told me about the oven. I felt sure, however, that, being a man, I would understand any such mechanical contrivance as a gas stove. I wondered what under the sun possessed the inventor of a gas stove to put the oven down near the floor. I am rather a portly man, and getting down on my knees to look into that old oven wasn't an easy thing. I turned on the gas and went for the match. When I came back and crawled on my hands and knees to light the jet—great heavens!—an explosion occurred that sent me half across the room. In the middle of it all I heard that infernal milk boiling over again.

The greatest of natures, when aroused, sometimes become terrible. I felt murderous. I also felt desperate. I gradually approached that oven again assumed the attitude of prayer and put those biscuits in with a slam. I was perspiring all over. I took off my tie and collar and looked at my watch. It was 6:30. I was to have dinner at 6, and the tomatoes were not touched yet! I wiped them off, got the butcher knife and began to peel them, for I reflected I had no time to waste in cooking them.

I would eat those microbes alive. Life at this crisis seemed of little worth anyway. I had sent somewhere that tomatoes should be skinned and peeled; but the more I tried to skin those pesky things the more the insides came out. A terrible expression came over my face. I did not know but my usually kind disposition was ruined for life, but I felt sure of the biscuits and the oyster soup—what remained of it.

Then I put the chops on the fire. It was about 7. The chops immediately started to sizzle and I saw the look of the soup and sputtered and blazed to such an extent that I felt desperate. I was watching them every minute when I thought aloud: "By Jove, there are the biscuits! Perhaps I had better look at them." They were all there, but somehow they looked dejected. While I was finding out from the cookbook (which I immediately consulted) that I ought to have put baking powder in them, the gas of the tomatoes made me rush to the stove, only to find my chops black and beyond rescue. I felt myself an unfortunate man. I began to mumble incoherently to myself, and I feared that it was all going to work upon my brain. With the astuteness that characterizes me as distinguished from my fellow men I gave up all efforts. At this moment, because all hope was lost and I was on the look-out for misfortunes, I cried out, "Blamed if I haven't forgotten the potatoes!"

I had the look of one of the early Christian martyrs. They, too, had suffered and loved and lost. Even the insects I had used were not sulphurous enough.

I went into the shed and brought back a pail. Into that I scraped the soup carefully. Next I dumped in the biscuits. Then I gently put the tomatoes and chops on top. This accomplished, I passed hurriedly out into the back yard, stopping only to get a shovel out of the wood shed. I dug a hole and tossed the whole thing in. Then I meekly returned to the house and regaled myself on some bread and butter which I found in the pantry. Just as I was doing this the clock struck 8.

"Hello, dear!" I cried, for I was determined to forestall any remarks. "I've been terribly busy, detained at the office, and just got home."

"Oh, Thaddens!" said Maria regretfully. "And you have been without your dinner! I never should have left you!"

By this time Maria had seen the kitchen.

"Maria!" said I solemnly, for I saw her pause, "you have been invited to join a club for the subjugation of husbands. You needn't join. I am subjugated already. You women are always talking of 'our sphere.' Encroach on man's sphere if you will, but for heaven's sake don't ask me again to encroach on yours!"—New York Herald.

Bed as the Best Cure of Dyspepsia.
Albu draws attention to the frequency with which neurasthenia, anemia and malnutrition are associated and the great amount of injury to the system at large that may be produced by such a triad. The deficiency in nerve energy and the consequent imperfect innervation of the tissues lead to a general lack of muscular tone which in turn expresses itself in different ways according to the region of the body affected.

In the abdomen the general relaxation has for its consequences viscerotonia and atony of the stomach and intestines, with their attendant evils, and in proportion as the lack of proper nutrition increases, the somatic weakness, the debilitating events move in a vicious circle of greater and greater circumference and constantly involves more remote regions in the disease. Under such conditions the evident indications are rest and feeding. But to be properly effective the patient must completely change his previous faulty mode of life and be treated in a wholly alien environment.

As a routine for such cases at least three weeks of absolute rest, in a quiet institution away from home is to be advised, together with a full diet, for, even though the state of the stomach may seem to contra indicate this overfeeding, in most cases it will relieve the symptoms more quickly than the most carefully adjusted but quantitatively insufficient regime. By these means bodily waste of all sorts, nerve and muscle, is reduced to a minimum, and the depleted cells are enabled to regain their normal tone and vigor.—Zeitschrift für Krankenpflege.

METHODS OF IRRIGATING.

Plants Injured by Standing in Water—High Duty From Fur o-ling.

By far the greater number of crops seem to thrive better when water is not allowed to come against the crown of the plants. Even plants, such as celery and cabbage, which are said to thrive in a saturated subsoil, are not benefited by standing directly in the flood, and potatoes, corn, tomatoes and other plants show unmistakable injury if the water is allowed to come in contact with the stalks where they emerge from the ground. A matter of common observation is that grass and grain, which are usually irrigated by flooding, produce more luxuriantly growth on ditch banks and higher ridges and knolls where the roots are supplied by seepage from beneath rather than from flooding the surface. This fact has led in some localities to the adoption of the rill system with such crops as cover all the land. The rills or small streams are laid out on contour lines with a corn marker or other implement which will produce small parallel ditches, and the water is allowed to run through them for several days at a time until the land is well saturated. Tests of this method have shown that it is not practicable to irrigate thoroughly by means of it without a large waste at the lower side of the field.

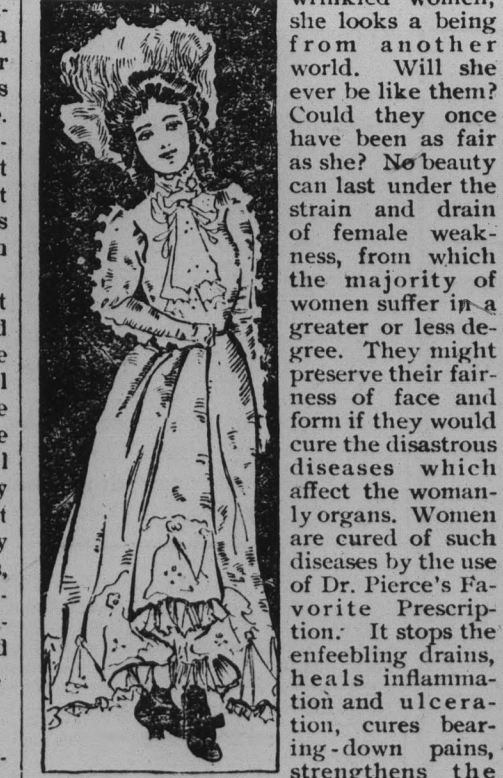

Flooding is the system more generally adopted for such crops as forage plants and grains, which cover all or practically all of the land. The bed and check methods are modifications of flooding. With this system much depends on the configuration of the land and the skill of the operator, and men who become skillful in the application of water command higher wages and are always in demand. Under ordinary conditions the man who understands the business will irrigate with little or no waste. Where the slope is not too great, the surface even, with the soil permeable and the head water supply adequate, not a drop will be allowed to escape from the land by running off the surface, and the efficiency of the water is as great as it could be under any other system of distribution. With a stiff clay soil, which absorbs water slowly, the head or flow used must be so modified as to allow time for the water to be taken up, but in loose, sandy soils a large head is necessary to cover the land as soon as possible. In some instances the soil is so porous that it is necessary to fill it to a considerable depth before the water can be run over the surface, and in such cases large amounts of water are required. On loose or gravelly soil water usually has a small duty.

In furrow irrigation the water is run through channels plowed for the purpose between rows of plants, such as corn, potatoes and like crops, which are planted sufficient distances apart. In this system it is possible, if so desired, to give partial irrigations—as, for example, by allowing the water to run through every other furrow for so short a time that not all the land between them is supplied. High duties are often obtained in this way, and the crop is said to be irrigated with an amount so small that it would be impossible to soak all the land with it. On the other hand, if the soil is thoroughly soaked at each irrigation practically as much water is used as in any other method.—B. C. Buffum.

The General Purpose Farmer.
The general purpose farmer who is a good gardener gets a better living for himself and family than the special crop farmer, affirms American Agriculturist. He raises his own dairy products, beef, pork and mutton, eggs and fowls, fruit and vegetables, and if he wants to eat them he is not obliged to stop and count the cost. He has no fear of starvation through stoppage of railroads or strikes. He is not as badly affected by a poor season, for he has several crops to depend upon, and, as he usually sells more than he buys, it is an easy matter to keep out of debt.

How Will She End?

Just budding into womanhood, so fresh, so fair and fine that we turn to watch her as she passes, she trips along the street, a picture of health and beauty. Among the passing crowd of worn and wrinkled women, she looks a being from another world. Will she ever be like these? Could they once have been as fair as she? No beauty can last under the strain and drain of female weakness, from which the majority of women suffer in a greater or less degree. They might preserve their fairness of face and form if they would cure the disastrous diseases which affect the womanly organs. Women are cured of such troubles by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It stops the enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, cures bearing-down pains, strengthens the nervous system, and restores the general health. It contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness," writes Mrs. M. B. Wallace, of Menster, Cook Co., Texas. "I tried four doctors and none did me any good. I suffered six years, but at last I found relief. I followed your advice, and took eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and four of his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I now feel like a new woman. I have gained eighteen pounds."

H. H. GRANICE - EDITOR

THE ALAMO.

Among the many historical spots visited by the editors of the California Press Association on their recent jaunt to New Orleans was the Alamo, located in the very center of San Antonio, Texas. It was here that Col. Travers, Col. Bowie and Davie Crockett and their brave Texan followers to the number of 160 were slaughtered to a man in 1836 by Gen. Santa Ana and his Mexican Army of 5000 men. Of the Texans that remained to defend the fortress not one ever lived to tell of the slaughter that followed the raising of the black flag by the Mexican General. All died fighting to the last, and when the slaughter ceased Travers and his men lay cold in death on the one side and fifteen hundred Mexicans on the other. The Alamo is sacredly preserved by the State of Texas and its blood-stained walls stand to-day as they stood sixty-five years ago. Every Texan is proud of the Alamo, as it was the scene of one of the most desperate, brave and sanguinary sieges ever recorded in the annals of modern warfare.

The wreck of the steamer Rio de Janeiro just outside the Golden Gate on Friday of last week was one of the most heart-rending marine horrors ever recorded on this coast. Through the criminal foolhardiness of the captain and pilot of the vessel in attempting to enter the harbor in a dense fog the lives of 127 people were sacrificed in order to reach port that morning and save to the Pacific Mail Company the expense of feeding the passengers for another day. Of course this may not be proved by the inquiry now going on but it is a fact nevertheless, as there was no other earthly reason why the vessel was not laid to until the fog disappeared and there was clear sailing ahead.

J. C. HOLLOWAY, ex-State Senator, died at his home in Cloverdale Tuesday night in his seventy-fifth year. Mr. Holloway was elected to the State Senate from this county six years ago by one of the largest majorities ever given by the Republicans of Sonoma county to a candidate for that office, receiving over eight hundred more votes than his Democratic opponent. Senator Holloway was a man of the strictest integrity and represented the people of Sonoma county in the State Senate with dignity and ability. He was a native of New York and leaves a son and daughter both of whom reside in Cloverdale.

Arrangements to the agitation to disincorporate the town that is being indulged in by a few short-sighted citizens of Sonoma we would rise to remark that it is now in order to agitate the abolishment of the newspaper, post and express offices, the churches and the public schools of this town. We could then dig a hole, crawl into it and pull the hole in after us. There is no sense in doing things by halves.

BEFORE the Legislature adjourned last Thursday, the committee substitute for Assembly Bill No. 242, which will be known as No. 586, was introduced. The proposed measure is intended to provide for the formation, organization and classification of new counties, for locating the county seats, for the election and appointment of officers, and for the adjustment and fulfillment of the rights and obligations arising between such new counties and other counties.

The above bill was amended by Broughton to make the separation of the new county from the old more difficult. The old county must be left with not less than 10,000 population and the new one must have at least 8,000. The county line must not pass within seven miles of the county seat (instead of five), and the proportion of electors signing the petition must be one third instead of one-fifth. The amendment was adopted and the bill sent to the printer to be on third reading.

THE OBSERVER.

The committee of the Alabama Legislature which went to Pensacola in the interest of the annexation of West Florida to Alabama reports that the annexation is likely to go through and that Alabama is willing to pay $2,000,000 for the annexed territory. The members of the Florida Legislature for the twenty counties that are in favor of annexation will pool their issues with those of Jacksonville and the East coast and will vote in favor of the removal of the capital from Tallahassee to Jacksonville, in return for which they expect the Jacksonville interests to vote in favor of letting West Florida go. It requires only a majority vote to pass the bill to petition Congress to change the boundary line between Florida and Alabama. The Legislature of the latter State is unanimous for the annexation except the members from Mobile, who are afraid that that city may lose some trade to Pensacola.

Recent statistics show in a striking way the vast sum of money now expended each year to maintain the several Christian denominations. A writer in the Nashville American (January 20th), basing his statements upon the returns from the churches compiled for 1900, says:

"There are 187,800 churches, with a value of $724,900,000. Last year the running expenses of the churches of the United States were $287,000,000. It required nearly $9,000,000 for New York City alone. For the four cities of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston over $18,000,000 was required, and this does not include new buildings, mission contributions, or general charities. One hundred years ago there was not a missionary society in this country; now our missionary societies collect and disburse $25,000,000 a year. Statistics recently compiled show that it costs $14,500,000 a year to maintain the Episcopal churches of this country, while the Presbyterian cost $20,375,000; Baptist, $12,348,000; Methodist, $26,267,000, and Roman Catholic $31,185,000. The Sunday-school lesson papers, libraries, etc., cost $7,250,000.

"Trinity Church, of New York, is regarded as the richest church in America, it having large holdings in real estate; but St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, New York, has an income of about $200,000 a year, while Trinity, also Episcopal, receives about $168,000 a year. There are several Episcopal churches in New York, Philadelphia and Boston having incomes of from $50,000 to $130,000 a year. The largest income of any Presbyterian church is that of the Brick, New York, which is $116,000 a year; the next largest is the Second of Indianapolis, with $85,000. Madison Avenue, New York, has the largest income of any Methodist church, $39,000 a year. The wealthiest Baptist church is Fifth Avenue, New York, its income last year amounting to $145,000. The Rockefeller attend this church, and its income last year does not represent a fixed annual amount. While the Baptist churches have more than six times as many members as the Episcopalians, the cost of maintaining the latter is more than $2,000,000 greater. The Episcopal Church, in proportion to numerical strength, cost from three to five times as much for maintenance as either the Baptist, Presbyterian, Methodist, or Catholic.

"About $2,000,000 a year is spent for Bibles by the American people, while $500,000 a year goes for hymn-books and $60,000 a year for prayer-books. The cost of religious periodicals and other literature amounts to $11,750,000 a year. Last year the amount of money spent by all countries in the interest of Christianity amounted to much more than $1,000,000,000.

It's Easy To Take

is exactly what they require; it not only gives them the important element (cod-liver oil) in a palatable and easily digested form, but also the hypophosphites which are so valuable in nervous disorders that usually accompany anæmia. SCOTT'S EMULSION is a fatty food that is more easily digested than any other form of fat. A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health. You can get it in this way.

We have known persons to gain a pound a day while taking it.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The average woman who is a wife and mother, with a home to take care of, cannot engage in profitable work outside of her home without detriment to her domestic interests. If she attempts it either the machinery of the home itself, the wisest training of her child or children, or her own mental growth or physical strength will suffer. There are exceptions, but superlatively clever women are rare—about as rare as superlatively clever men.—Edward Bok, in the March Ladies' Home Journal.

WORKMEN are now actively engaged in restoring the Parthenon at Athens. One end is nearly completed and work is proceeding on the other portions.

Colds. The quickest relief, for a cold, is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We all have colds, you can try it and see. You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick and complete, if you wait till the cold is in full possession of head and lung, why, of course, the relief is quick if it comes in a week.

A little emulsion won't clear and restore your whole breathing machine in a minute; don't be looking for miracles.

STAFFORD PRESS, 23 Church St., New Haven, Conn. CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought

The Two Archers.

Love and Death are both depicted as archers. When Love sets his arrow in a woman's heart, and she turns and follows, seeking healing of her hurt, could there be aught sadder than that she should be led by very Love into the ambush where Death, arrow on string, waits to plant his deadly shaft in her breast? Yet so it is. Time and again Love proves to be Death's decoy. And often when the grim archer fails to inflict mortal hurt, he leaves the suffering woman to creep through life like a broken-winged bird.

Why does love lead to suffering? Many a woman has asked that question piteously and passionately. She has forsaken father and mother to cleave unto her husband in the belief that so she was achieving woman's highest happiness. But instead of happiness she has found misery, struggled with it until struggle seemed useless, and at last has come to accept her misery as the "cross" laid upon women who love and marry.

There is no real reason why almost every wife and mother should not enjoy sound health. The causes of her misery lie in diseases which affect the delicate, womanly organism. Disagreeable drains are carrying away the vital force. Inflammation has lighted its fire for slow torment. Ulceration is eating into the tender tissues. Female weakness is making life a daily martyrdom. Is it any wonder that the nerves are racked, that appetite fails, and night, which should bring rest, brings only restless and troubled dreams?

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which undermine the general health. It dries the drains, puts out the fire of inflammation, heals the ulcerated tissues and cures female weakness. In a word, it makes weak women strong and sick women well. "Favorite Prescription" is a true temperance medicine. It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, or other narcotic. Sick and ailing women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free of charge. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. In a little more than thirty years Dr. Pierce, assisted by his staff of nearly a score of physicians, has treated and cured over half a million women. Write, without fear or fee, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

HAD GIVEN UP HOPE.

"It is with feelings of sincere gratitude that I again write to you," says Mrs. Harry A. Brown, of Orono, Penobscot County, Maine. "I wrote to you concerning my health last Spring (I think it was in June), and you advised me to take your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which I did according to directions, and continued taking them for five months. I took nine bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' six of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets. My disease was displacement and ulceration of the uterus, and I was in a terrible condition with pain and weakness, and had given up all hopes of ever being well again. I was treated by four different doctors within four months, and instead of getting better was growing weaker all the time. I decided to try your medicines, as I had heard of the many cures resulting from their use. I bought five bottles and felt so much better after using them that I kept on until I am as well as ever in my life, and to Dr. Pierce all the praise is due. Before I began taking your medicine I only weighed 70 pounds. I now weigh 125 pounds. I gained forty pounds in six months. I shall doctor no more with doctors, as it is only a waste of money. No matter what my trouble is, I shall write to Dr. Pierce every time. I am now in perfect health, thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-bound book, or for cloth binding, send 37 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR MALARIA, CHILLS AND FEVER.

The Best Prescription Is Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The Formula Is Plainly Printed on Every Bottle. So That the People May Know Just What They Are Taking.

Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called "Tasteless" chill tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.

J. G. SCHIECK PASSES AWAY.

Resided in this Valley for Forty-Five Years.

J. G. Schieck, a pioneer resident of the Sonoma Valley, died at his home near Glen Ellen on February 19th of heart failure, superinduced by old age.

Deceased, previous to locating in this valley in 1856, was a professional florist in San Francisco. He was married in that city and shortly after took up his residence near Glen Ellen. He leaves four grown children, three sons and a daughter. The latter is Mrs. Agnes Brokmann of Santa Rosa. The sons are Fred. Schieck of Vallejo and David and Herman Schieck of Glen Ellen.

Mr. Schieck was a native of Germany and aged 78 years.

The remains were brought to this place for interment in Mountain Cemetery, the pall bearers being W. A. Thompson, Prof. Cromwell, Patrick Monahan and Julius Wegner of Glen Ellen and W. A. Weaver of El Verano. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Frances Watry of the Sonoma Congregational Church.

Bold Attempt to Steal a Safe.

A bold attempt was made by two men on Tuesday night to steal Dr. Walliser's fire-proof safe, which lay in the ruins of his home which had been burned to the ground that morning. The safe weighed about 300 pounds and contained money, jewelry and private papers. It had been lifted out of the cellar where it had fallen and left to cool off, it being Dr. Walliser's intention to have it removed to a place of safety the next morning. At about nine o'clock on the night in question two men were seen to drive up alongside the safe. They carried a lantern and had just seized hold of the safe and were in the act of lifting it into their wagon when they were seen by Mrs. Carmer, a neighbor, who gave the alarm. The men then jumped into their wagon, extinguished the lantern and drove hurriedly away into the darkness. Had it not been for Mrs. Carmer's interference with the plans of the bold thieves Dr. and Mrs. Walliser would have suffered another heavy loss in addition to that of the burning of their home. The darkness prevented the men from being identified.

RESIDENCE BURNED.

Dr. Walliser's Beautiful Home a Mass of Ruins

Two Pianos, Three Cases of Books and Parlor Furniture Saved—Loss About $6,000—Insurance $3,100.

The nine-room residence of Dr. Carl Walliser was burned to the ground last Tuesday morning about 7 o'clock. The residence is located on the east line of Broadway outside the city limits, and in consequence the fire had gained considerable headway before being discovered.

As usual Dr. and Mrs. Walliser arose about five o'clock on the morning in question and after preparing and eating breakfast Dr. Walliser drove his wife to Vineyard Station, where she boarded the cars for San Francisco. The doctor then returned to his home and was engaged in stabling his horse when he discovered that the rear of the house was on fire. His shouts brought a number of neighbors to his aid, but it was too late to save the house. An effort was then made to save the furniture and personal effects in the front rooms, with the result that two valuable pianos, three book cases containing 1000 volumes and the furniture of the double parlors were got out of the burning building and deposited across the street. By this time the house was a seething mass of flames and everything else, including the doctor's valuable surgical instruments, went up in smoke and flame.

The fire started in the kitchen and was no doubt caused by a spark from the stove alighting in the wood box or a defective flue.

The loss is between $6,000 and $7,000 and is partially covered by insurance. The house, which is a total loss, was insured for $2,000 in the Hartford company. There was also an insurance of $1,100 on the furniture and other personal effects. This latter insurance was in the Fireman's Fund of San Francisco.

The doctor had recently allowed an additional policy of several hundred dollars to lapse on his personal effects and is out just that much more on his loss.

It is Dr. Walliser's intention to rebuild in the near future.

Gentlemen of Leisure.

Thos. Waldren and Dan Sinclair, recently employed in boring for oil on Dr. C. C. O'Donnell's place, Glen Ellen, were arrested by Deputy Constable Lounibos, Monday afternoon, on complaint of John G. Shortt, foreman of the ranch, who charged the men with disturbing the peace. It appears that the accused engaged in a battle of words with foreman Shortt in which much hot air in the shape of cuss words was generated by the well borer, hence their arrest. The men were brought to this place and arraigned before Judge Cheney, who, after hearing the testimony both pro and con, imposed a fine of $10 each, or the alternative of going to jail for ten days. As the latter embraced a pleasant jaunt to Santa Rosa on the cars and the hospitalities of the country's hostelry they gladly accepted the journey and a ten-days' furlough. They were escorted to the county seat by Constable Ohm the same evening and were immediately taken to the Hotel de Grace where they will pass their time as gentlemen of leisure.

Ranch to be Sold at Public Auction.

Frank Chelini will dispose of his 37-acre farm, formerly known as the Ewell place, at public auction on the premises at one o'clock this afternoon. The farm is one of the finest in the Sonoma Valley and is beautifully located on the east bank of Sonoma creek. Everything on the place will be disposed of including horses, wagons, poultry, farming implements, etc.

Wine Cellar Burned.

Lemoine's wine cellar near Glen Ellen was burned to the ground on Tuesday morning last at one o'clock. The cellar contained fifteen thousand gallons of wine and a large quantity of cooperage, all of which was consumed. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss is between $5,000 and $6,000.

PROPOSED DIVISION OF SONOMA TOWNSHIP.

Supervisors to Hear the Petitioners Thursday.

The citizens of Glen Ellen and vicinity, as related in these columns several weeks ago, have petitioned the Board of Supervisors to divide Sonoma Valley into two townships, thus giving the progressive people of Glen Ellen an independent township of their own. It is proposed to cut Sonoma Township in two just this side of Bridge, which will place the California Home in the new township.

The main object sought to be obtained by the division is to give Glen Ellen a Justice of the Peace and Constable, which she is really entitled to. As things now are the people of that burg are put to considerable trouble and expense when they are subpoenaed as witnesses in cases which come under the jurisdiction of a Justice's Court.

The petition praying for the division has received almost the unanimous endorsement of the people of the proposed new township. This being so, and as there appears to be no opposition whatever to the proposition the prayer of the petitioners will no doubt be granted by the Supervisors if there be no legal obstacles in the way.

Fierce Storm.

One of the fiercest storms that ever visited this valley was that of last Saturday afternoon. For a period of twenty minutes the rain came down in almost a solid sheet of water and every creek in the valley was converted into a raging torrent.

THROAT REST

You can cough yourself into bronchitis, pneumonia, and consumption. Bandaging and bundling your throat will do no good. You must give your throat and lungs rest and allow the cough wounds to heal. There is nothing so bad for a cough as coughing. Stop it by using

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Even the cough of early consumption is cured. And, later on, when the disease is firmly fixed, you can bring rest and comfort in every case. A 25 cent bottle will cure new coughs and colds; the 50 cent size is better for settled coughs of bronchitis and weak lungs; the one dollar size is more economical for chronic cases and consumption. It's the size you should keep on hand.

All families ought to be on the watch for sudden attacks of croup or asthmatic troubles. Every country home in the land should keep Ayer's Cherry Pectoral constantly on hand to provide against an emergency.
